The guaranteed income period ensures payments will be made for a minimum specified time, even if you pass away. If you pass away before the end of this term, the remaining payments to the end of the guarantee period, will go to a designated beneficiary providing financial security for your loved ones.

The escalation feature increases your income at a predetermined rate, helping you keep up with inflation and maintain your purchasing power.

The joint life option provides regular income for both you and your spouse for as long as at least one of the two assured lives is still alive, ensuring financial stability throughout your lives.
